Significant Public Interest

1. The Commissioner and the Chief Constable trust and rely upon senior officers and staff to exercise their thinking by reference to experience, instinct and good judgment. The following guidance has been provided for consideration (although this list is not exhaustive) when deciding if a decision is of 'significant public interest':
 - a. Matters which are important to achieving the aims and objectives set out in the Police & Crime Plan; and/or
 - b. Matters which present high risk(s) in achieving the Police & Crime Plan objective(s); and/or
 - c. Matters which involve
 - i. Investment
 - ii. Income other than cost recovery
 - iii. Innovation
 - d. Matters which are likely to impact on public confidence in North Yorkshire Police, the Police & Crime Commissioner for North Yorkshire, or the police service in general; and/or
 - e. Matters which involve a point of law of public importance or of importance to the police service as a whole; and/or
 - f. Matters which are reasonably considered to be ones which the public would expect to see published Decision Notices in the interests of public accountability.

ⁱⁱ The Codes of Corporate Governance sets out the following key operating principle in respect of decisions by delegates

PCC Code of Corporate Governance

The Commissioner and Chief Constable expect anyone exercising delegated powers or consents under this scheme to draw to the attention of the Office of Police and Crime Commissioner and/or Chief Constable as appropriate any issue which is likely to be regarded by the Commissioner and/or Chief Constable as novel, contentious or repercussive before exercising such powers.

PCCFRA Code of Corporate Governance

The Commissioner expects anyone proposing to exercise a delegation or an authorisation under this Scheme to draw to the attention of the Commissioner any issue which is likely to be regarded by the Commissioner as unique, exceptional, contentious, repercussive or likely to be politically sensitive before exercising such powers. In assessing whether any issue is likely to fall within those descriptions, the public facing impact of such issues should be taken into account.
