EVOLVE COLLABORATIVE LEGAL SERVICES (ELS)

CONFLICTS OF INTEREST & CONFIDENTIALITY PROTOCOL

The Evolve Collaborative Legal Services has six principal clients: each of the Chief Constables of Durham Constabulary, Cleveland Police and North Yorkshire Police, and the Police & Crime Commissioners for Durham, Cleveland and North Yorkshire. This Protocol is incorporated within the Collaboration Agreement signed between the Parties and shall apply to any new Parties to the Collaboration Agreement.

It is the responsibility of the solicitor/barrister/legal executive (the 'lawyer') within each of the respective legal teams (within the Evolve Collaborative Legal Services Collaboration Agreement) - who are employed by, and who act under the direction and control of one of the above Chief Constables, or one of the above Police and Crime Commissioners, to identify any potential conflicts of interest. This responsibility applies in the following circumstances:

- When the lawyer is providing legal services to the employing Chief Constable or Police and Crime Commissioner; or
- When the lawyer is providing legal services to another Chief Constable or Police and Crime Commissioner within the Evolve Collaborative Legal Services Collaboration Agreement.

CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

As in any situation in which a lawyer acts for more than one client, it is clearly recognised that there is a potential on occasion for conflicts of interest to arise.

It is crucial that the circumstances giving rise to any such conflict are promptly identified and recorded in writing in order to provide an audit trail which will stand scrutiny by clients, indemnity insurers and/or the Solicitors' Regulation Authority, Bar Council and CILEX Regulation.

Conflicts may arise in any number of situations. These may be best illustrated by the following (non-exhaustive) examples.

1. An employment tribunal claim which might allege discrimination naming the Chief Constable and Police & Crime Commissioner as respondents and which might make allegations about their personal conduct.
2. Gross misconduct by a Chief Constable which results in a Police & Crime Commissioner calling into question the continued service of the Chief Constable.
3. A claim against two or more clients, whether jointly or severally, relating to liabilities defined in a collaboration agreement which then result in a dispute arising between the clients.

It is the professional duty of all lawyers to identify and deal with potential or actual conflicts of interest in accordance with the Solicitors Code of Conduct 2007, the Bar Standards Board Code of Conduct (as set out in the BSB Handbook, enforceable from 2014), or the CILEX Code of Conduct (2015).

The Solicitors Code of Conduct sets out the principle in Rule 3.01 that there is a duty not to act where a conflict of interest arises, as follows:

- 1) You must not act if there is a conflict of interests.
- 2) There is a conflict of interests if:
 - a. You owe, or your firm owes, separate duties to act in the best interests of two or more clients in relation to the same or related matters, and those duties conflict, or there is a significant risk that those duties may conflict; or
 - b. Your duty to act in the best interests of your client in relation to a matter conflicts, or there is a significant risk that it may conflict, with your own interests in relation to that or a related matter”.

The Bar Standards Board Handbook sets out the requirement that a barrister must not act, or accept instructions in a case, if:

- there is a conflict of interest between your own personal interests and the interests of the prospective client in respect of the particular matter; or
- there is a conflict of interest between the prospective client and one or more of your former or existing clients in respect of the particular matter. The exception would be if all of the clients who have an interest in the particular matter give their informed consent to you acting in such circumstances.

The CILEX Code of Conduct 2015 at paragraph 7.1 states that a legal executive must ‘not act or continue to act where there is a conflict of interest or a significant risk that a conflict may arise.’

If any matter arises which might involve a lawyer or member of support staff in a situation where there could be either actual or possible conflict of interest, then it is the duty of the person concerned to report the matter to the relevant Force Solicitor or the Director of Evolve Collaborative Legal Services, immediately.

Anyone in the slightest doubt about something which might be regarded as conflict of interest must discuss it with the relevant Force Solicitor or the Director of Evolve Collaborative Legal Services.

If an actual or perceived conflict of interest arises then it may be necessary for one or more of the clients to be separately represented. When this happens, unless the circumstances of the case are such that the Force Solicitor of the relevant force is unable to act for either the Chief Constable or the Police and Crime Commissioner, there will be a presumption that each Force Solicitor will act for their respective Chief Constable, with the other client(s) being represented by separate Evolve Collaborative Legal Services lawyers/independent solicitors or counsel, as appropriate.

CONFIDENTIALITY

The Solicitors Code of Conduct sets out the principle relating to confidentiality at Rule 4, 4.01 which states: “You and your firm must keep the affairs of clients and former clients confidential except where disclosure is required or permitted by law or by your client (or former client)”.

The Bar Standards Board Handbook, Core Duty 6, Rule C5 and Rule C15.5, require barristers to preserve the confidentiality of clients’ affairs. Any barrister who does not adhere to this by, for example, allowing other people to see confidential material, losing portable devices on which unprotected information is stored, or not disposing of client papers securely could face disciplinary action by the Bar Standards Board.

The CILEX Code of Conduct 2015 at paragraph 5.12, requires legal executives to ‘maintain confidentiality in respect of your client’s affairs except where to do so would conflict with the law or the Code or where your client explicitly authorises you to disclose confidential information.’

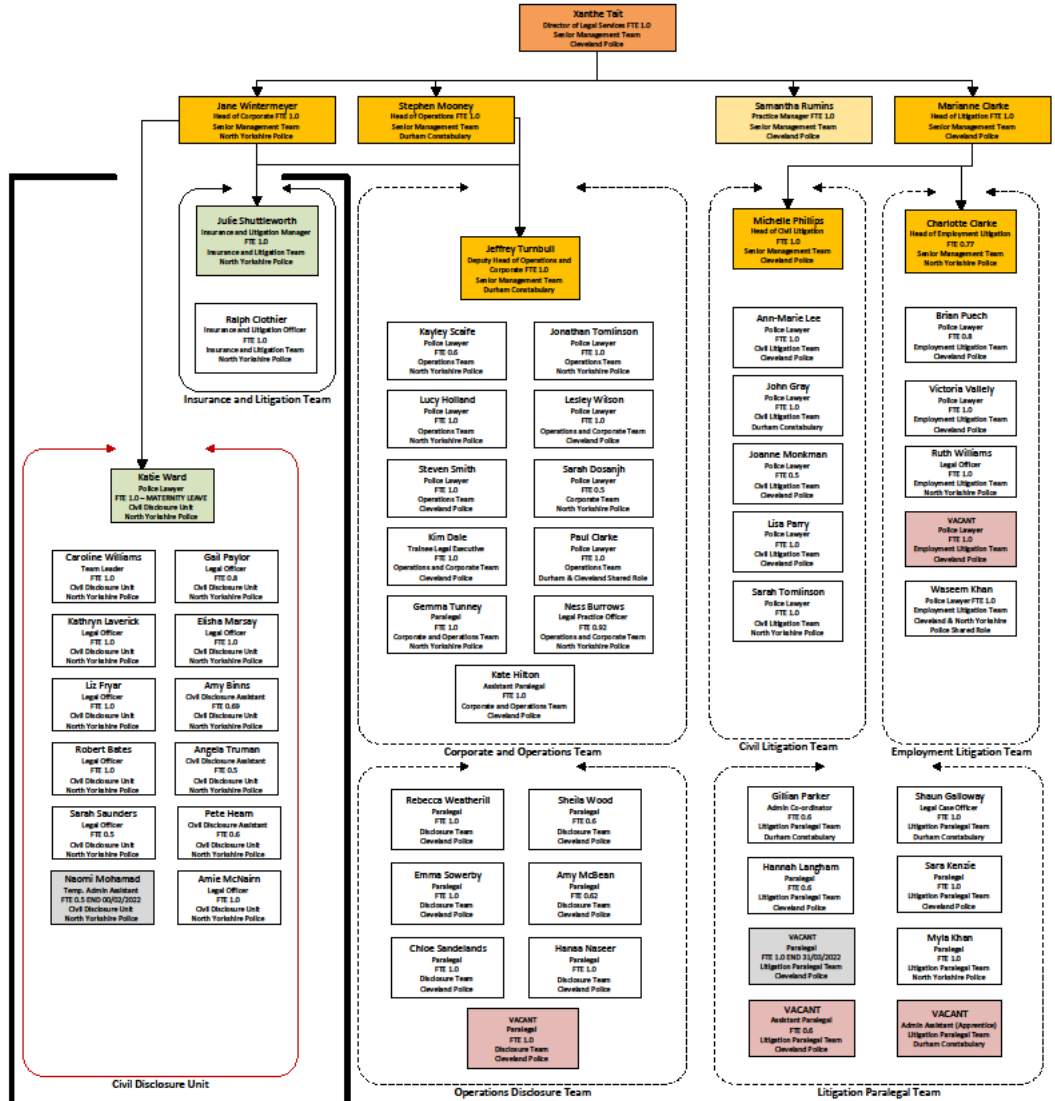

Lawyers must comply with the requirements of the Data Protection Act 1998 in handling data to which the Act applies.

1. During the course of employment, lawyers will have access to, gain knowledge of and be entrusted with information concerning individual clients. This information may include matters of a highly sensitive and/or personal nature.
2. Lawyers should understand that access to this data, including computerised or manual records, is made available only to those members of staff who have an absolute right and need to know.
3. The above provides general guidance only. The issue of confidentiality should not inhibit, in appropriate cases, the sharing of best practice between the Chief Constable and Police & Crime Commissioner. Furthermore, where necessary, clients may waive their right to confidentiality.

If any difficulties arise in specific cases in the context of either conflict or confidentiality the matter should be referred to the Force Solicitor or Director of Evolve Collaborative Legal Solicitor, who will in turn discuss it with the relevant Chief Constable and/or Police & Crime Commissioner, as appropriate.
